ADJOURNMENT VOTE CARRIES

Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has chosen an unfortunate moment to put the constitutional question to the nation. He is smarting over the defeat of the NRA and other New Deal measures by the Supreme Court justices. The Republicans, crowing over these decisions, would like nothing better than to make revision of the constitution the campaign issue of 1936. To do so would be a grave strategic error for Mr. Roosevelt, but he seems to be determined to lean that way regardless.

Supreme Court decisions have not been wholly disastrous for the Democrats.

VOTE IN TEXARKANA

County Dry by 100 Votes — Wet Lead in City Approximately 100

DALLAS, Texas.—(AP)—Sale of liquor, outlawed in Texas for the past 16 years, was approved Saturday by a quarter-million Texans.

Dry leaders who contended the amendment repealing constitutional liquor prohibition admitted defeat as the majority of the votes cast in Saturday's referendum passed the 50,000 mark.

A constitutional amendment for old age pensions also was adopted by an overwhelming margin.

Votes from 239 of 254 counties, 52 complete, showed a majority of 55,395 Sunday night for repeal, with the

Special Session
AUSTIN, Texas.—(AP)—Governor Red said Monday a special session of the legislature would be necessary to enact legislation to give effect to the constitutional changes adopted Saturday and asked legislators to communicate their views on the date for the session and the form of proposed legislation.

"The people have spoken decisively on the liquor question," the governor said on prohibition repeal. "The majority rules. Liquor laws and liquor enforcement now depend on local option."

Latest tabulations by the Texas Election Bureau on the repeal vote showed 260,917 in favor of discreding prohibition, compared to the 206,583 ballots rounded up by the dries.

count 259,218 to 203,869. The vote on old age pensions was 365,397 for and 91,864 against.

C. L. Wakefield, chairman of the Dallas County Repeal Organization, said: "We shall demand that sale of liquor be regulated thoroughly and that counties and precincts preferring to remain dry by local option have adequate protection."

The repeal amendment makes provisions somewhat similar to that in effect before the state went dry in 1919.

Bowie County "Dry"
TEXARKANA.—Dry forces, defeated decisively in the state at large in the Texas special election Saturday, probably will wind up in Bowie county with a majority against repeal of dry laws.

The figures from one box were added Sunday to the totals tabulated Saturday night for repeal up to 1845 and against repeal to 1938, making a dry majority of 93 votes.

Four boxes are still unreported. The total vote from the four will be small.

Work Must Begin Oct. 22 — Relief Rolls Will Close Out Nov. 1

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt Monday fixed September 12 as the deadline for the filing of applications for money from the 4-billion-800-million-dollar works relief fund.

He directed that all agencies, federal, state, municipal, be prepared either to ask for bids or begin work operations by October 22.

The president set November 1 as the date for putting his works program into high gear, taking all unemployed off the relief rolls.

Charge Against Stephens Dismissed

Prosecutor Drops Action in Opening Up of County Jail

County Judge Overstepped Authority, But 'Without Criminal Intent'

OFFICIALS SILENT

No Statement From Bear-den or Stephens in Hempstead Controversy

Charges of aiding the escape and rescue of felons from the county jail against County Judge H. M. Stephens were dismissed in municipal court at noon Monday on motion of the state.

Prosecuting Attorney Neal Stewart held the court that the action of Judge Stephens in freeing the prisoners indicated an economy move "without criminal or willful intent to violate any law."

"We want to co-operate with the county, and I feel that the county judge wants to co-operate with us. There is no ill feeling, and it is regretted on both sides that the county judge's action brought on a situation like this."

"Judge Stephens did not ask that the case be dismissed, neither did Sheriff Bearden or P. T. Stages, deputy prosecutor. After thorough study of the case it was decided by the state to ask for dismissal," Prosecutor Stewart said.

No Agreement
After court adjourned Mr. Stewart was asked if there had been an agreement whereby the county judge would not release prisoners in the future.

Mr. Stewart replied that there had been no agreement to this effect.

Mr. Stewart pointed out that the judge had overstepped his authority in releasing felons from jail. "There are only two legal ways of releasing felons. The first is to obtain suitable bond, and the second is an order from the circuit judge," Mr. Stewart concluded.

Sheriff Bearden, on whose order the county judge was arrested several days ago, had no comment to make. Judge Stephens made no public statement.

The trial case of J. A. Lindsay and his son, Homer, charged with robbery in connection with the holdup of the Southern Grain & Produce Co. several days ago, was continued to September 16.

Republicans Accept Challenge to Make Constitution Issue

Snell Attacks "Attempt to Place Whole People in Lockstep, Denying Individual the Right to Exercise Own Judgment"

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Republican party took issue Sunday with the Roosevelt administration in an appeal to the youth of the country for concerted opposition to a revision of the constitution.

In reply to President Roosevelt's radio call to a new generation of voters for a united attack upon the "old order," Representative Snell, Republican leader of the house, asked that they accept the challenge.

"It is not a question of what is best for the Republican party, but of what is best for America," he said in an address released through the Republican National Committee.

Snell's speech followed an assertion by Representative Bolton, Republican, Ohio, chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, that the session of congress about to close was "a portrayal of the danger of the domination of a popular government by a dictatorial executive."

Snell asserted that the New Deal program "attempts to place a whole people in lockstep and deny to the individual the right to exercise his own judgment and resourcefulness in the management of his business, farm, or factory."

He quoted from Mr. Roosevelt's speech of Saturday night directed to a convention of Young Democratic clubs in Milwaukee.

"In his Milwaukee address, the president stated that according to the philosophy of the New Deal, our present system must be modified, (and I now quote) to save our economic structure from confusion, destruction and paralysis."

"Without any attempt to elaborate, I submit there never has been a period within the memory of any living being when there was greater confusion, doubt and fear in the minds of all classes of people, in all walks of life, or a greater threat of destruction of all that is worthwhile of our economic and political system than exists today."

Emphasizing the appeal to youth at every point Snell asserted that "the rising generation" will be called upon to pay "the almost incredible debts which are being incurred by this administration."

U. S. Warns Soviet to Cease Plotting

Sharp Note Handed Russia Following Speeches Against America

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Letting the vigorous United States protest to Soviet Russia speak for itself Secretary of State Hull today only said Monday that no indication of the time or nature of Moscow's reply had been received.

The secretary of state declined to comment on his unexpected move against "flagrant violations" of Russian pledges against non-interference in American affairs—pledges made to President Roosevelt before recognition was extended.

U. S. Files Protest
MOSCOW, Russia.—(AP)—America's ambassador to Russia, William C. Bullitt, Sunday delivered on behalf of the United States government an "emphatic protest" against activities of the recently elected Congress of the Communist International.

His blunt note to Vice Commissar Krestinsky, in acting charge of foreign affairs, said these activities involved interference in internal affairs of the United States, and called them a "flagrant violation" of the pledge made by Soviet Russia at the time she was recognized by America.

The American government, he warned, "anticipated the most serious consequences" if the U. S. S. R. "is unwilling or unable to take appropriate measures to prevent further acts" in disregard of its pledge to prohibit activities in its territory aimed at changing the political or social order of the United States.

The note deemed it unnecessary to cite specific statements by delegates to the congress, at which some speakers indicated the eventual aim of the Communist party in the United States was establishment of a Soviet government.

Waterspout Kills 6 in Genoa, Italy

Great Liners Break Loose From Moorings as Tornado Strikes

GEONA, Italy.—(AP)—A towering waterspout swept into the city from the harbor Sunday night, killing at least six persons and injuring more than 50. The spout appeared in the midst of an electrical storm. A large section of the waterfront was reduced to tangled wreckage.

The San Giorgio pier, where many great ocean liners were berthed, was damaged most. All electric cranes along the pier were demolished.

The liner Conte di Savoia, completing a voyage from New York, broke from its moorings. It was swept down the harbor. Tugs barely prevented the liner from crashing into a wall and several nearby vessels.

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Cotton showed an opening gain of approximately 50 cents a bale at the start of trading here Monday when light buying came into the market.

Futures were based on fair cables and legislative uncertainties surrounding the 12-cent loan bill. The pressure which was exerted against the market during the closing sessions of the week subsided Monday as traders hesitated about selling cotton until the new loan plan was definitely settled.

The October option opened at 16.50, quickly running up to 16.53 while December at 16.42, January at 16.43, and March at 16.42, showed gains ranging from 10 to 14 points.

Many Types of Germs Called Streptococcus.

The germ known as streptococcus used to be an acquaintance of doctors exclusively, but today few people fail to have some knowledge of this all-around germ.

The streptococcus is not really just one germ, but a wide variety of germs possessing the one characteristic of growing in chains. Under various conditions of growth, however, they change their nature and bring about diseases of different types.

It is now generally conceded that a streptococcus is responsible for erysipelas and that another streptococcus causes scarlet fever. But scientists are not yet agreed that these germs are in any way related to each other or to any of the numerous other streptococci.

One group of bacteriologists argues that all the streptococci are related, and another says that they are absolutely distinct. Besides being associated with erysipelas and scarlet fever, however, streptococci are found in sore throat of an epidemic type, in the kind of fever that attacks women in childbirth, in all sorts of rheumatic disorders and infections of the heart.

As evidence of the fact that these germs are not related, but that they have distinct qualities, a specialist points out that there are no records of epidemics in which some patients had scarlet fever, others erysipelas and still others both diseases.

What is known about these streptococci permits scientists to study the nature of live organisms.

It is known, for example, that rheumatic fever, which affects the hearts of children, occurs rarely in Puerto Rico, and that children with this disease tend to get better in that climate.

Puerto Rican doctors point out, however, that the streptococci there produce forms of infection of the joints, the muscles, and the bones which are quite distinctive, and which probably are related to the fact that the conditions in Puerto Rico for the streptococci differ from the conditions under which they live in the temperate zone.

Gardeners know that the qualities of plants vary according to the soil on which they grow. In the same way, the qualities of the germ vary according to the kind of human body in which it grows.

A BOOK A DAY

By HERMANN B. DEUTSCH, to far our picture of things back into focus. The picture still isn't entirely clear; there was confusion, self-seeking, looting and scheming—plenty of it—but it is no longer a meaningless welter of bloodshed and violence.

Mr. Deutsch describes the revolutionary experiences of a boy from a Mexican village, and presents the whole disordered scene from the fall of Diaz to the rise of Obregon through this lad's slowly developing understanding.

There is, first, the slow but passionate rise of resentment against corrupt government, and extortionate landowners. This breaks into flame. Armed bands go out blindly, smashing things, living by pillage, slowly coalescing into genuine revolutionary armies. In the end, definite gains are made and life is better—though the ordinary man seldom has a clear idea of what he wants to do or how it is to be done.

It makes a violent and colorful tale, and Mr. Deutsch has set it off with some first-rate human touches—as, for instance, the case of the boyish soldier who comes home to be soundly spanked by his mother for having been published by Stokes, it sells for $2.50.

YOUR CHILDREN

Inattention to Spoken is Word Bad Habit

Molly, seventeen, goes to the telephone. Someone announces himself and Molly gets it like a shot. "Oh, Bill, I thought it was you. What are you doing?"

"Just sittin' here. Talkin' to you," "Huh?" says Molly. Bill repeats it. "Huh?" says Molly again. Bill says "What are you doing?"

Molly says, "Oh nothing. Just reading." Bill asks Molly what she was reading.

She says "Huh?" again, and Bill tries hard to remember that Molly's curls are golden and her eyes very blue. After a few dozen "huh's" he is vaguely irritated although he is only subconsciously aware of the stupid habit.

She hears perfectly well the first time but won't rouse her attention to the sticking point and lets the idea soak in by absorption. It is the latest and most slowly trick in the world, this of putting all the work on another. If Bill had said he had been trying to find out the difference between ichthyology and entomology, Molly would have been justified perhaps in asking for a repetition, but it is the case with the sticky-minded that nothing at all soaks in at the first telling; easy or hard, it's all the same.

Children pick up this habit so easily that a mother or even a teacher may let it go unnoticed. They patiently repeat every sentence they utter. This mental lethargy is almost as blameworthy as the other.

At the moment I have in mind two families in whose homes no right-minded person could stay completely sane for twenty-four hours. Each member of the family has to repeat whatever he says twice. Each one asks to be told over again. A day is a succession of echoes that tell a tale of inattention if not actual stupidity.

Concentration Is Different

"Open the window, Jane," means just that. Jane should not be answered when she says, "What did you say?" when she has heard perfectly well. "See who is at the door, Billy," or "Where is the paper?" should click at once. Why repeat it?

It is true that children are often deeply engrossed with something and actually do not hear. True, too, that we rudely interrupt others deep in a story or game by some unimportant remark that could wait. But this is different from the vacuum of inextinguishable "rigor mortis" of the brain.

Nothing is more useful to the expectant mother than to hear people converse with ears ajar and wits on the trigger. Children need to be taught both.

Whether dumb or not, the mentally lazy child will certainly earn the name if he does not snap out of it, and act and look intelligent when spoken to. Molly might actually be a right smart girl. But if so she is keeping it a good secret.

JO DARIEN breaks her engagement to BETT PAUL, college teacher and because he objects to her taking a job as hostess at Crest Lake Inn, fashionable summer resort owned by wealthy DOUGLAS MAINE. Jo goes to Crest Lake and later Bert arrives as a life guard.

Young Mr. Marsh's eccentric mother, Misses Jo, BETT PAUL, FRAGONET, film actor, pays Jo marked attention and asks her to marry him as soon as he can get a divorce. Jo becomes friendly with LOUISE MONTAG, film actress.

Prompted by his mother, Marsh asks Jo to leave Crest Lake. She decides to go to Hollywood to look for a job, and flies there with Fragonet. Later she begins to doubt Fragonet's promises and moves to a rooming house where she cannot find her. Lou Monte offers to help Jo find a job. SUE DRANN, the director, asks Jo to come to the studio for a screen test. She goes.

Drann tells her the screen test was a success, but later Jo learns this is not true. Lou gets Jo a job in a sandwich shop. Fragonet comes there one day. To get rid of him Jo agrees to see him that night. She is surprised, instead, by a visit from Mrs. Fragonet.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

JO's face drained of color at sight of Edna Fragonet, and instantly the thought crossed her mind that Fragonet himself would unwittingly appear at any moment now.

"Please don't look so astonished, Miss Darien," Edna Fragonet said, her voice heavy with sarcasm. "Surely you must have expected to see me some time during your stay in Hollywood."

"I'm afraid I didn't," Jo hoped her words were steady. "But now that you're here . . . won't you sit down?"

"Thank you, no. I'll be only a moment, Miss Darien. I want you to know I don't intend to give Fragonet up."

"I had no idea that you did, Mrs. Fragonet."

"Then what's your game?" asked the other woman. "What did you expect to gain by flying to Hollywood with him, by bounding him?"

"Just a moment, Mrs. Fragonet!" Jo interrupted quietly. "I'll answer your questions—and I'll answer them truthfully." Her voice was steady now, she knew, and it was steel-edged with pride and hatred. "My game to Hollywood is simply to earn an honest living. My reason for coming in your husband's plane was to save the fare, I suppose. And because Peter Fragonet, I'll be eternally grateful if you'd take him to Europe and keep him there!"

Edna Fragonet's expression did not change. "Suppose," she asked, "that Peter and I stay in Hollywood—where we belong—and you leave?"

"I'll leave Hollywood when I'm ready, Mrs. Fragonet, and I don't believe you or anyone else can make me leave until then."

Fragonet's wife was silent a moment. Then she advanced toward Jo, her fists clenched and her eyes pin-points of anger. "I wouldn't be too sure of that, if I were you. Would it interest you to know that after tomorrow you won't have a job?" Watching the effect of this question, the woman relaxed, smiling. "And jobs are hard to find here, I think you'll decide you'd best go home."

At first Jo could hardly believe what she had heard, but as she gazed at the cold, venomous glance of the other woman she knew that Edna Fragonet would attempt just what she had promised.

"What if Maisie refuses to fire me?" Jo asked slowly.

"I hardly think she'll be able to afford not to, Miss Darien. But if she wants to be a fool, and you attempt to stay on here, I'll raise a row that will be heard from here to New York!"

"But—but that wouldn't be fair to Boleson, and it would ruin your husband," Jo protested.

The other nodded quickly. "You pretend not to be interested in Fragonet—but why do you want to be so sure his career isn't spoiled?"

Jo was about to answer when she heard the front doorbell, and before she could move from the spot she saw the landlady hurrying past the door on the way to answer it. With a frightened glance at Edna Fragonet, Jo heard Peter's booming voice ask, "Is Miss Darien at home?"

He stopped dead still in the doorway; then, mastering himself as he might for a scene before the camera, he came into the room and walked straight toward his wife.

"What's all this, Edna? Making trouble again?"

Her answer was cold and lifeless, but Jo sensed that there was hurt in it, too. She sensed that Edna Fragonet loved this man in her rigid, possessive way and that she would fight senselessly for him until she died.

"Suppose you explain to me, Peter. You and Miss Darien here."

"There's nothing to explain," Fragonet said quietly. "You've been yelling divorce until my ears are ringing. And I want to marry Jo." His lips curled in a smile that froze Jo's heart. Here was a Fragonet she had never seen.

His wife turned swiftly to Jo. "You hear? You deny that—"

"What?" It was almost a scream, that single word crowding from Jo's nerve-tightened throat. "I heard it. I heard what he said—but will you hear what I'm going to say?" She faced them both, holding to a chair, holding because she was weak with anger now. "I—I think you're both fools, and I never want to see you or hear your names again as long as I live! I've had nothing but trouble since the day you came to Crest Lake."

SHE turned on Fragonet. "Why do you think that when you love a woman it turns something on inside her, like an electric light? What makes you think that all you have to do is say, 'I love you' and want to marry you, and I'll jump at the chance? It must be because you always win in the pictures you make, or maybe it's because of all the foolish letters you get, or what crazy women say when they see you in public?"

"Jo!" Fragonet raised a protesting hand.

"I'm not going to stop until I'm finished. This is what I planned to say to you tonight, and I'm glad your wife is here to hear me say it . . ." Jo stopped, breathless, then plunged on again. "I did like you at first—but I never told you that, no matter how you tried to make me believe I did. I liked you at first because I . . . because once there must have been something about you that

Dean Brothers Win Double-Header From Brooklyn as Giants Lose

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—(AP)—The irrepressible Dean brothers pitched the Cardinals into the National League lead Sunday as they turned back the Dodgers in a double-header, 10 to 3 and 6 to 1, before a crowd of almost 30,000.

The twin victory, coupled with the Giants' loss to Chicago put the Cards half a game ahead of the New York club, which had held the lead since April 27. The Cards swept the five-game series to extend their latest winning streak to eight straight.

The Cardinals, a month ahead of last year's schedule in moving to the front did it much in the same way that they raced past the Giants at the close of the 1934 series to take the pennant. Last September the Dean brothers here down against Brooklyn for a double shutout. Dizzy allowing only three hits and Paul none at all, to sweep their club upward and the same pair came through a week later to capture the deciding games of the year.

Dizzy and Paul were less impressive Sunday but they had no trouble winning. The elder Dean coasted through to his 22nd victory of the season in the opener, yielding 10 hits. His fellow Red Birds knocked Johnny Babeich out of the box in the second inning and lambasted Emil Leonard to score five runs before Rookie Tom Baker slowed up the attack. Jim Collins hit his 20th home run of the season in the fifth.

George Earnshaw gave Paul Dean quite a struggle for a while in the afterpiece but Paul was the better stayer, allowing only eight hits. The Dodgers didn't score on him until the eighth when Johnny McCarthy, rookie first baseman just recalled from Alton, tripled and counted on Danny Taylor's double.

The Cards went ahead in the third on Leo Duracher's double. Popper Martin's single and steal and Frank Frisch's base hit added three more in the fifth to make it 5-0 when Virgil Davis singled and Terry Moore, Duracher and Martin hit doubles. A long fly put Frisch across the plate with the final run in the seventh.

he would accept the senate amendments.

President Silent
Although there were rumors that Mr. Roosevelt might "talk turkey" to senate leaders, the executive was reported to have conferred with no members of congress Sunday except Buchanan. Mr. Roosevelt had nothing to say publicly. It was generally agreed that only his refereeing could break the stalemate which virtually stopped adjournment of congress two minutes before midnight Saturday night.

The impasse developed after President Roosevelt had congratulated congress on an "historic session" and projected for next session task of making permanent such emergency legislation as the invalidated NRA.

Sunday, Speaker Byrnes and a large group of house members were away on a recreation cruise down Chesapeake Bay. They did not plan to return until Monday morning, evidently putting squarely on senate leaders the task of unravelling the adjournment snarl.

Row Over Appropriation Bill
The trouble was about a $93,000,000 appropriation bill passed by the house to which the senate added riders directing the Commodity Credit Corporation to lend farmers 16 cents a pound on their cotton and 16 cents a pound—about 90 cents a bushel on their wheat.

The riders were added after the Farm Administration had ordered a reduction in the actual cotton loan from 12 to 9 cents. Senator Byrnes, Democrat, South Carolina, led the cotton-rider forces and in the negotiations necessary to put the cotton amendment through wheat was added too.

The senate took that action fairly early Saturday, but the seriousness of its threat to adjournment was generally overlooked until after nightfall. Then Chairman Buchanan, Democrat, Texas, of the house appropriations committee took the floor and said that instead of sending the bill to conference, he was going to let it die.

Senate Leaders Filled
Actually, Senate administration chiefs were willing for that to happen for they already had assurances that the president could find other ways of providing the $76,000,000 the bill would appropriate for initiation of the social security plan.

But if that had happened, the cotton and wheat state senators would have gotten credit for seeking loans for their farmers and house members, who voted on a roll call for adjournment without the deficiency bill having passed, would have been blamed for rejecting the loans.

House leaders refused to put their members "on the spot." Instead of killing the bill and adjourning it, they sent back to the senate the resolution calling for final adjournment Saturday night. The senate rescinded its vote for the adjournment resolution and both branches stopped work until Monday noon.

Many Rumors
Sunday, all kinds of rumors floated through the air. The president was said to have agreed to let the deficiency bill die. He was said to have insisted that it be passed without the cotton and wheat loans; he was said to have agreed to accept it with the loan riders.

The deficiency bill with the riders is on the speaker's desk. Either by unanimous consent or adoption of a special resolution on a majority vote, it could be taken off the desk and sent to conference. Or it could be sent to the Appropriations Committee, where Buchanan said it would be "choreographed."

If it went to conference, separate house votes probably would have to be held anyhow on the wheat-cotton riders. In that event, Democratic leaders feared the house would approve the riders, despite administration objections.

Altar Rumor Links Joan, Tone

That this ardent Crawford-Tone love scene, from a recent movie, may have been more than sheer histrionics, is hinted by the Hollywood rumor that Franchot and Joan may soon trip to the altar. "Well, what do you think?" is Joan's quizzical reply to queries about their engagement, arising when the glamorous screen actress flashed a large, glittering diamond before intimate friends.

Texas Votes For

and probably will bring the dry majority in the county to slightly more than 100. There are only 110 poll tax receipts held in the four precincts, which are Shaw, Pine Springs, Spring Hill and Ward's Creek.

The total vote in Texarkana remains unchanged, the complete figures for the 11 voting boxes giving a wet majority in the city by itself of an even 100.

The totals for and against, and the majority for or against, on the other six amendments in Bowie county, with the four boxes out of 42 unreported, are as follows:

Pensions, for 3562, against 284, majority for 3278.

Insanity, for 2037, against 1505, majority for 532.

Amendments, for 1391, against 1489, majority against 98.

Sentences, for 1633, against 1421, majority for 212.

Fees, for 2028, against 1117, majority for 911.

Textbooks, for 1335, against 2269, majority against 934.

Thompson discussed with the students the problems of legislation in Arkansas. He traced a bill from the author's pen to the governor and forebodingly emphasized the pitfalls that must be avoided by each successful legislative enactment.

The school children of Hempstead county would appreciate the appearance of more public men in their midst and Spring Hill was particularly fortunate in hearing Mr. Thompson and Mr. Ware, school officials said.

Reverend Weisenberger, for the last ten months principal of the Spring Hill school system, has resigned effective September 7, in order to accept a position at superintendent of schools at Marshall, Ark. Mr. Weisenberger has taught four and one-half years in Hempstead county schools and goes to Marshall highly recommended by the people of Hempstead county. He is a graduate of the University of Arkansas, where he worked his way through.

in the house group. The outlook seemed hopeless.

Winning Through

After weeks of deadlock, the conference suddenly reported out a bill far more favorable than any friend of TVA had dared anticipate.

Norris and Hill, throwing every ounce of energy into their persuasion, had won over two of the house conferees, giving them a majority on that side. The inside story is this:

The Norris threat to tie up the issue until next session, making TVA a campaign issue unless it were treated fairly now, was backed up by pregnant messages from an important gent at the other end of Pennsylvania Avenue and by his congressional contact man, Charles West.

Chairman John McSwain of the house conferees, a South Carolinian and secret foe of TVA, was caused to remember that his state seeks 20 or 30 million dollars for a certain Santee-Cooper river navigation and power project.

Congressman Numa Montet of Louisiana, who has broken with his old friend Huey Long, was forcibly reminded that an anti-Kingfish candidate could be re-elected in Louisiana without strong administration support.

After McSwain and Montet saw the light, it was all over.

TVA Giver Scope

The net effect is to let TVA do approximately whatever it finds necessary to achieve success and to knock out hampering restrictions. The TVA directors have insisted that they must be allowed some of the flexibility and freedom of a business corporation and a minimum of red tape.

McCarl, instead of getting the finger hold on TVA finances for which he had hoped and worked so long, receives a setback. Although still authorized to audit TVA accounts, his comments can no longer be heralded—as they were recently by “power trust” representatives—as a “report” damning the development. McCarl's reports hereafter will be subject to TVA scrutiny and accompanying explanation or answer before they are submitted.

Also, the comptroller general must now pay for his own audit of all TVA accounts except that relating to top power. TVA officials have been sore because McCarl stationed 15 of his men, at Knoxville and elsewhere at a cost of $75,000 a year to TVA. These agents go in for such things as counting the number of men at a movie show at Norris construction camp.

The new legislation also reaffirms TVA's right to use its own judgment in awarding contracts. McCarl had criticized severely because from three to five per cent of its contracts hadn't gone to low bidders.

West's Influence

The end of the session will give Charlie West a chance to find out what his job as undersecretary of the interior is like. He was appointed weeks ago at a time when it was supposed that the end was then near.

Ever since, West has been up to his ears on his job of “Lobbying” for Roosevelt on Capitol Hill.

The extent to which the White House got what it wanted in the closing days was to no small degree due to his efforts.

Italy Warns British

LONDON, Eng.—(P)—The Daily Mail published an interview Sunday with Premier Benito Mussolini in Rome in which he was quoted as saying “it should be realized without the possibility of misunderstanding that whoever applies sanctions against Italy will be met by the armed hostility of our country.”

Asked for his advice to other European nations for the best method of sustaining general peace, the newspaper's interviewer said Mussolini replied that other nations “should follow the example of the United States and leave us alone to fulfill our mission.”

The British cabinet was reported last week to have decided to support sanctions against Italy if all members of the League Council at the meeting September 4 agree to such a move as an attempt to preserve peace in East Africa.

“I shall send a delegation to the League Council September 4 for the purpose of putting Italy's case clearly before the world,” Mussolini said in the interview at the Palazzo Venezia.

Our cause will be supported by documents and photographs, I shall even send a case of books, including one by Lady Simon, denouncing the barbaric slave-owning habits of the Ethiopians. And when the Council has considered this evidence, I shall challenge the League to treat Italy as being on the same footing as Ethiopia if it can.”
